For foil designs on your cover, you will need to upload the base design of your cover, as well as a separate white design, where any black elements represent the areas you wish to be foiled

Top Tip: If an element is in your foil file, remove it from the background layer to prevent duplication from minor shifts!

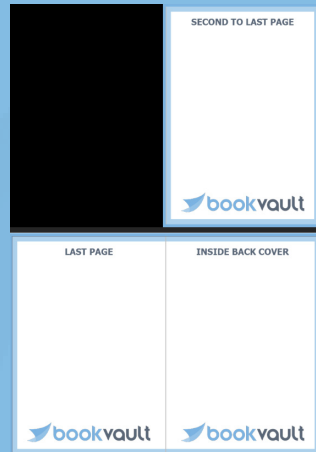

Endpapers

Your endpaper file will be made up of four spreads, the first two spreads represent the front of the book, and the final two spreads are for the final pages of your book. The areas in black on your template should be left blank as they signify the first and last page of your book taken from your interior file.

Top Tip: Endpapers can be the perfect way to display artwork such as maps or characters relating to your books!

Sprayed Edges

Your file should be a vertical strip wrapping around all three page edges. The height matches the trim size, and the width depends on spine thickness (page count + paper stock). Like your cover, providing sufficient bleed is essential for a seamless finish!

Top Tip: Your selected paper color affects sprayed edges—cream stock can alter colors, and full-bleed artwork may affect colours printed onto the page. Plan accordingly for the best results!

Box Sets & Slipcases

Your file consists of three panels—a top, bottom, and a wraparound panel covering the sides and spine. The height and depth match your books, while the width depends on the number of books and their spine thickness. Ensure artwork extends to the bleed points for your desired outcome.
